UN condemns mass murder; RP beats Iraq

THE UNITED NATIONS ON WEDNESDAY deplored the massacre of at least 57 people, including journalists, in Maguindanao and called for the perpetrators to be brought to justice.

In a statement issued by his spokesperson at the UN head-quarters in New York and posted on the UN website, UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon condemned the "heinous crime."

"The secretary general extends his heartfelt condolences to the families of the victims and hopes that an effort will be made to bring the perpetrators to justice."

GMA asked: Why no arrests yet?

Suspects treated with kid gloves—Biazon

By Christine G. Arcandada
and TJ Borgeon

SEN. RODOLFO BIAZON yesterday asked Malacañang why no arrests had been made three days after the slaughter of at least 57 people in Maguindanao in the worst political violence in the country's history.

"I am still wondering why in many days after evidence had been established as to the occurrence of such a heinous criminal act and the identification of possible perpetrators and accessories has been mentioned by news anchors, why is there no arrest made yet," Biazon asked the bureau.

"In political considerations, a major factor here considering Malacañang has remained that both existing families were political allies of President Marcos-papa-Arroyo."

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of Lakas-Kampi CHD last night voted unanimously to oust Maguindanao Gov. Andal Ampatuan Jr. and his two sons, Gov. Zaldy Uy Ampatuan of the Zamboanga Region in Marikina Mindanao (AMRI) and Mayor Andal Ampatuan Jr. of Davao City, as party members in good standing, after they were linked to the Maguindanao massacre.

Heard, victims were being laid out under beamed leaves on Tuesday as police—their faces covered with waist-high grass, bodies lie with twisted heads looking in the air. They had been shot point-blank.

The discovery brought the death toll to 46—an unprecedented act of violence at the outset of the country's election season. This climbed to 57 yesterday after two more 15-foot deep mass graves yielded 11 bodies. Chief Sgt. Joceline Catolana, regional police chief, said two of the newly dug up bodies were inside two vehicles. Another van was also recovered from the same grave.

He said the families included more than 29 journalists who were out to cover the filing of the certificate of candidacy for Maguindanao governor of Basilan Vice Mayor Eulandio Man-

POKAT, BANGKOK—AS THOUGH IN REACTION TO criticism over the Palace's rapid response to the killing in Maguindanao of at least 57 people, including lawyers and journalists, President Macapagal-Arroyo yesterday said today would be a day of mourning.

"I am declaring a day of mourning for the victims of the mass murder in Maguindanao," the President said in a message during another of her forays to her home province of Pangasinan, this time to open a P160-million access road connecting Pore to the Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway (SCTEX).

House, Senate to probe massacre

By Christine G. Arcandada

LAWMAKERS IN THE TWO CHAMBERS of Congress have filed resolutions calling for an inquiry into the mass murder believed perpetrated by an ally of President Macapagal-Arroyo in Maguindanao.

In filing Senate Resolution No.

1461 yesterday, Senators Benigno Aquino III and Manuel Roxas sought an investigation and asked the chamber to condemn "in the strongest possible terms the brutal and heinous election-related murders and carnage of innocent civilians."

Aquino and Roxas also joined other senators in calling an authority to dismiss the private armies in Maguindanao.

At the House, Speaker Rufan Bop. Pox Maguindanao filed on Tuesday a resolution also calling for an investigation or determine "the true national policy as regards the security situation in Maguindanao," as well as the culpability of

SC extends early campaigning

By Norman Borja

THE SUPREME COURT YESTERDAY RULED that there is no law banning politicians from airing informational and putting up campaign billboards and posters even after they have filed their certificates of candidacies and before the start of the official campaign period.

In a resolution that evoked its September 2009 decision rejecting a Justice Del Norte motion for a writ of prohibition, the court ruled that a candidate is not liable for any election offense like premature campaigning before the start of the campaign period.

It clarified that the Automated Election Law, or Republic Act 8436, provides that a person who has filed a certificate of candidacy is not considered an official candidate until the campaign period starts.

"To Ignacio's logic, this means that a candidate is liable for an election offense only for acts done during the campaign period, not before," the high court said.

"The law is clear at daylight—any election offense that may be committed by a candidate under any election law must not be committed before the start of the campaign period," it said.

This was a reversal of the high court's September 2009 decision finding Francisco Irujo, the mayor of Iloilo, Manila, Senate del Norte, guilty of premature campaigning in the 2007 elections and stripping her of her position.

After filing her certificate of candidacy for the 2007 polls, Irujo held a motorcycle rally to encourage people to vote for her less than a month before May 10, an election day. The campaign period for local polls began then.

The Court's previous ruling would be considered that the del Norte case had been set aside and that would have to say they filed their COCs or they would not be liable for an offense as the high court decision had established that there was such a crime as premature campaigning.

In yesterday's decision, the Supreme Court clarified that the del Norte case was a precedent for the early filing of COCs.

Under the law, the campaign period for national polls starts three months before May 10, an election day. The campaign period for local polls begins then.

The Court's previous ruling would be considered that the del Norte case had been set aside and that would have to say they filed their COCs or they would not be liable for an offense as the high court decision had established that there was such a crime as premature campaigning.

As for the Court's ruling, it is to give the del Norte case its proper effect.

Supreme Court spokesperson Milan Manzano explained that those running for office in the 2010 elections may continue to air their informational and post billboards and posters even after they have filed their certificates of candidacies.

"The filing of COCs should not stop them from doing so with their ads," said Manzano at a news conference in connection with the Supreme Court decision.

Presidential bets wooing FVR

By Cynthia S. Balana

ALL BUT ONE PRESIDENTIAL HOPE has sought endorsement for the coming 2010 elections. The former President Fidel V. Ramos put down his bid, saying he would instead focus on his duties by March or April next year.

According to reports at the family of his book, "Reflections of FVR: Memories, 'Mak'at, 'On Band the Philippine Way" (Philippine Free Press), "the Manila Times, Ramos said the presidential endorsement is not even as a former president and he would like to focus on his duties. "All presidential candidates have voluntarily come to my office at my home, which is in Alibon, to talk about 2010. They want to consult their minds with me," he said.

Ramos did not mention the name of the candidate who has not yet approached him but some of his close aides, who were present in the book launch, said he was probably referring to former President Joseph Estrada.

Ramos said there were letters from this one candidate for them to have a dialogue but he has not yet responded "because of the heavy pressure of work in his foundation."

Ramos confirmed his meeting with presidential candidate Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino Jr. and vice presidential Sen. Benigno Aquino Jr. on Tuesday night in the "Cory Aquino room" in his EDSA Foundation office in Manila.

Ramos, one of the leaders of the civilian military revolt that brought Corason Aquino to power in 1986, said he showed the young Aquino his photo collection. They talked about the life of Aquino's mother and her administration, where Ramos served as chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and defense secretary. Ramos now Corason Aquino's personal secretary in the 2010 presidential election.

Ramos said it was not easy for him to make a decision. "I was with my body language. It's not easy to make a decision," he said. Ramos said he was not sure if he would run in 2010. He said he was not sure if he would run in 2010. He said he was not sure if he would run in 2010.

Francis said he was considering running for a congressional seat in Batangas to take the place of his daughter, Rep. Gloria Estrella Balana.

"That's a possibility," he said candidly, when asked about the possibility of him joining Mr. Aquino in the House in July 2010.

Francis mentioned that he did not know when his Aquino's political plans were.

SEN. FRANCIS ESCUDERO'S decision to abandon his presidential bid has left his party, the Nationalist People's Coalition, in limbo.

According to Justice Secretary Armin B. Veloso, Escudero's announcement last Monday that he was not running for president at any national position in 2010 was a "surprise" to the NPC leadership and members.

With no standard-bearer in 2010, the NPC is "at a loss" on how it will be able to field candidates for national positions, said Veloso, who is preparing to run for the Senate.

He said Escudero's withdrawal has made it difficult for the NPC executive committee to find allies in other political parties.

"Where will we go? It will be hard for us," he said, noting that other parties have more or less lined up their national chairs.

"We are still awaiting for the decision of the party on what situation it would make with other parties," Escudero said.

The party could choose to support any of the presidential candidates or "it can be a free-for-all," he said.

But Escudero said the party "is spread" Escudero's decision to leave the race. "We understood... but should not have somebody to run," he said.

Escudero left the NPC, a five-member unit, but was still included in the NPC's choice of candidates to support in 2010.

Escudero said he himself would decide whether or not to lead the NPC in the next few days. Aside from Escudero, the NPC said it would be holding negotiations and an assembly and then setting and forming its leadership in the few, not sure.

'Urduja' weakens but leaves Cagayan de Oro flooded

By Alvin Paga

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18 (PDI) — A tropical disturbance intensified into a low-pressure area, prompting the weather bureau to issue a severe signal over strong typhoon rainfall.

At 3 p.m., weather updates revealing the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) said the center of the low-pressure area is estimated to be 350 kilometers east of Butig City.

The weather system is forecast to move east at 11 kilometers per hour.

Rain in Urduja, the 21st tropical system to enter the Philippine area of responsibility and the third this month, caused heavy flooding in parts of Cagayan de Oro, Oriental Mindoro.

National Crisis, the Paga deputy administrator, said the weather bureau was watching weather updates, with its forecasted name "Urduja," that might enter the Philippine area of responsibility this weekend.

On a visit to Butig through the town from the center of the Philippine area of responsibility while moving northwest, and will be renamed "Urduja" when it is.

Judge rejects Big 3 petition for his inhibition

By Tito E. Santos

A MANILA JUDGE HAS REFUSED TO INHIBIT himself from hearing a suit aimed at stopping the Big 3 oil companies from raising the prices of oil products.

Manila Judge Wilfredo Francisco II said the motion for inhibition filed separately by Petron Corp., Philippines Shell and to secure with sufficient evidence the oil companies of bias and partiality against him.

Francisco is heading a motion from the Social Justice Society (SJS) asking the court to stop the Big 3 oil companies—Petron, Philippines Shell and Chevron Phil.—from "further increasing the pump price of their petroleum products."

"The all times requested by filing a motion seeking the judge's recusal inhibition, saying they had 'bias and conflict of interest' that there could be 'a fair and impartial resolution' of the suit not because of the judge's 'independence, conduct and impartiality'."

Serious doubts

They said they had serious doubts about Francisco's "integrity and fairness in disposing justice with the oil companies of a magistrate."

They also questioned the jurisdiction of the court since the petitioners are not litigant or prohibited subject in their cause of stopping price increases in number of oil products.

"Under the Oil Derogation Law, the exclusive jurisdiction to investigate and determine these violations lies within the powers of the Department of Energy-Division of Justice (DOJ-DJ) Task Force and not with the trial court," it was contended.

In his ruling rejecting the motion, Francisco said the allegations against him by the oil companies were untrue and baseless.

More suspicion not enough

"It has already been established by jurisprudence that motion for inhibition must be grounded on just and valid causes," the judge said.

Citing a Supreme Court ruling, he said that "the bias and prejudice or the established valid reasons for the voluntary resignation of judges, mere suspicion is not enough. Mere allegations of their partiality will not suffice in the absence of evidence."

The judge said there is great reason for inhibition "should upon the grounds in a form of forum-shopping, in which litigants would be able to shop for a judge more sympathetic to their cause. Such action would be antithetical to the speedy and fair administration of justice."

In a month's time

The judge said he may resolve the issue of price manipulation in a month's time.

Initially asked the parties involved to submit a formal affidavit of inhibition. After that, the case is deemed inhibited for resolution," Francisco said.

At the hearing of the SJS case yesterday, Petron Law I, the dean of the School of Economics at the University of the East and the Pacific who testified in favor of the oil firms, was questioned mainly on the results of a study that the UMAP conducted with GSY & Co. in 2009 on the pricing practices of the oil firms.

In a previous hearing, I said the court that the prices and profits of the oil firms were reasonable and that there was no proof of overpricing.

over the country.

Adrian Austria of the weather forecasting website said rain can be expected in Palawan and parts of the Visayas and Mindanao because of the presence of the low-pressure system near (22C).

There are still expected cloudy weather with scattered rain showers and drizzle showers. These conditions could spread over other parts of Mindanao.

The ITC is a region near the equator where winds from the northern and southern hemispheres meet, causing the formation of clouds and low pressure areas.

A low pressure area is a lower level of tropical systems.

DUE PROCESS IS A REQUIREMENT OF GOOD GOVERNANCE

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources presents its position on the mining project in Mindoro as regards the following issues raised in an earlier paid advertisement in this paper and subject also of an on-going sit-in demonstration in front of DENR premises:

The recognition of the LGUs' moratorium on mining.

- The DENR recognizes the moratorium, but this is a separate issue. Based on PD1586, the DENR, through the ECC, is mandated to assess the environmental impacts of an environmentally-critical project and prescribe mitigating measures to address these pre-identified impacts, regardless of any existing moratorium.

The DENR stresses: (a) ECC is a planning tool, not a permit. It is supposed to guide the LGUs and other concerned agencies in the issuance of their permits; and (b) The LGU is responsible for upholding the local moratorium.

The failure of Intex Resources to conduct genuine consultations in the affected communities.

- DENR officials claim that they conducted public hearings in the municipalities of Pola and Mamburao, while Intex Resources conducted consultations and public scoping sessions in the areas of Calapan, San Teodoro, Victoria, Pola, and Sablayan, where the affected communities are located. These consultations/hearings were conducted to generate environmental concerns of the community, not social acceptability.

The steadfast refusal of LGUs to allow the entry of Intex Resources in the areas.

- The DENR respects the position of the LGUs on this matter. The DENR, however, must continue to act according to its mandate.

The sustained rejection and withholding of consent of the legitimate indigenous people to be affected by the mining operation.

- The immediate indigenous peoples such as the Mangyan tribes belonging to the Samahang Apo Diya Kakuyayan Inc. (SADAKI) and the Kanluran Mindoro at Kabluagan ng Mangyan Inc. (KMI), who occupy the actual concession area in Sablayan, Occidental Mindoro and Victoria, Oriental Mindoro, claim they gave their consent to the mining project. They also attest that a series of consultations were undertaken by the mining company.

The mining area is located within a watershed.

- According to those who recommended the issuance of the ECC, the mining project is located 25 kilometers from FB Harrison Bird Sanctuary and 36 kilometers from Mt. Iglit-Baco National Park, and thus outside the proclaimed protected/watershed areas.

The failure to consider EIA Review Committee vote.

- The DENR internal review team took careful note of the recommendations of the EIA Review Committee and incorporated these into the contents of the final ECC. However, per Administrative Order 42, the EIA Review Committee acts only on a recommendatory basis. The final decision to issue an ECC lies with the DENR based on a technical and factual evaluation and not – and has never been done – based on votes by Review Committee members.

The issuance of a suspension for 90 days, instead of a cancellation.

- The ECC given to Intex Resources was suspended for 90 days to allow DENR to conduct a thorough investigation of the allegations that the mining project is located in a watershed area and that inadequate local consultations were made. The purpose of the suspension, therefore, is to comply with the requirements of due process by giving parties time to submit evidence to support the allegations.

If indeed there was malice in the issuance of the ECC, the DENR will not only cancel the ECC but will also hold liable accountable employees who may have violated the process.

In fact, Secretary Lito Atienza has invited the bishops and governors present during the dialogue to be part of the investigation panel.

- The revocation should only come after a thorough investigation is done and documents presented are studied impartially by the investigation panel.

"Without due process, justice cannot be served. The possible prosecution of malicious and erring DENR employees and the eventual cancellation of the ECC have to be supported by facts, not by mere allegations. Otherwise, our decision may not even be sustained in a court of law." – SECRETARY LITO ATIENZA

Lapids ordered: Answer plunder raps

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—The Office of the District Attorney found the plunder case filed by Gov. Edilberto Panlilio against Sen. Manuel "Lito" Lapid, his son Mark and three former regional officials to be "sufficient in form and substance."

DAVAO PROVINCE
Lapids, Mayor and other officials group members fight against the plunder case filed by the District Attorney in the City of San Fernando.

The order came five months after Panlilio filed the plunder case in connection with the provincial government's low income from the road quarrying industry during the Lapid term in power.

Velasco files appeal with CA

Reversal of libel conviction urged

By Tito G. Santos

A GOVERNMENT PROSECUTOR who was convicted of libel charges filed against him by a judge has elevated the case to the Court of Appeals.

"We have filed our notice of appeal to the appellate court on the very day the decision was handed down," said Velasco. "Thus, the decision of the Manila regional trial court was immediately vacated and there is no conviction yet," he said. He said he was not in court when the decision was handed down.

On Sept. 11, Manila RPT Branch 17 Judge Eduardo Brando Jr. found Velasco guilty of the libel charges filed against him by Calabarzon City Judge Adoracion Angeles. Judge Brando found Velasco guilty of libel on the basis of a statement of one year, eight months and 28 days in prison. Velasco was also ordered by Brando to pay Angeles a P1,000 fine and P10,000 moral damages.

The suit was based on Velasco's statements to media to which he accused Judge Angeles of sexual harassment and libel. Velasco was also ordered by Brando to pay Angeles a P1,000 fine and P10,000 moral damages.

Surrender, NBI director tells prober

By Tito G. Santos

NATIONAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (NBI) Director Nemesio Mussoning yesterday urged one of the bureau's longest-serving senior officials to surrender to the justice system.

Mussoning, who has been in the NBI for 30 years, said he was not afraid of the allegations leveled against him.

"I was told that he has not reported for duty since the incident happened. It will be better if he comes out and answers the charges against him," he added.

The Mussoning police have launched a search for the man who allegedly shot dead his neighbor, Nemesio Mussoning and Eduardo "Tito" Velasco, at around 10:30 p.m. on Nov. 14. Based on a police report, Mussoning got shot while the victim, who was drinking in front of Mussoning's house in Bantayog Village 2, Marikina City, returned late for being "under the influence" (intoxicated). Mussoning's mother has denied the story, saying the two men were not drinking and were not in the house.

The report said Mussoning shot the two men separately and then fled. The victim was taken to the Medical Center in Marikina City where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The police have filed two counts of murder against Mussoning in the Marikina City Prosecutor's Office.

Obama vows to finish job in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON—PRESIDENT BARACK OBAMA, vowing to "finish the job" in Afghanistan, promised on Tuesday he would soon announce his decision on sending tens of thousands more United States troops to battle al-Qaida and the Taliban.

Obama said he would make an announcement after Thursday's Thanksgiving holiday, calling on the "obligations" of US allies and making clear that "the Afghan people ultimately are going to have to provide for their own security."

"When eight years, some of these years in which we did not have, I think, either the resources or the strategy to get the job done, it is my intention to finish the job," he said after talks with Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh.

OBAMA

Obama declined to comment on reports Obama would not a priori rule against war. "Any focused plan to try to win the remaining conflict around by sending some 20,000 more US soldiers to fight the insurgents."

"We are going to dismantle and degrade their capabilities and ultimately dismantle and destroy their networks. And Afghanistan's stability is important to this process," Obama promised.

Obama faces a US public sharply divided on the war and calls from some Democrats to allow to set a flexible timetable for withdrawal eight years after 2001. Obama rejected Afghanistan following the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks.

"I feel very confident that when the American people hear a clear rationale for what we're doing there and how we intend to achieve our goals, that they will be supportive," he predicted.

Obama also said "the whole world" has a responsibility to help the US-led mission in Afghanistan, and that his administration would share "the obligations of our international partners."

After months of deliberation, under the Iran Republican law, Obama held his speech and final strategy session with top commanders and national security aides for two hours last Monday.

US won't sign land mine ban

WASHINGTON—THE OBAMA ADMINISTRATION has decided not to sign an international convention that bans land mines.

State Dept. Insured spokeswoman Kelly said on Tuesday that the administration is "carefully considering a review and decided not to change the Bush administration's position."

"We decided that our land mine policy remains in effect," he said.

More than 120 countries have agreed to the Mine Ban Treaty's provisions to end the production, use, stockpiling and trade in mines. Besides the United States, nations include China, India, Pakistan, Russia, Myanmar and Russia.

Obama, rights groups had expressed hope that the Obama administration would sign the treaty.

Stephen Green, director of Human Rights Watch's mine division, said he was surprised by the announcement and called it disappointing. He said that his group had been pushing the administration to consider a review of its policy, but the administration had given no indication that it was under review.

"If our war is already completed, it may not be necessary," he said.

The State Department's Kelly said that the United States would send an observer group to mine reports to a review conference on the treaty in Cartagena, Colombia, next week.

A report this month by the International Campaign to Ban Land Mines found that mines remain planted in more than 70 countries. It also said mines reportedly account for at least 1,200 people and wounded 1,800 last year.

More than 2.2 million anti-personnel mines, 250,000 anti-vehicle mines and 17 million other explosives left over from wars have been recovered since 1990, the report said.

China mining blast toll climbs to 107

BEIJING—THE NUMBER OF DEATHS CHINA's worst mining accident in two years rose to 107 on Wednesday after three more bodies were pulled out of the coal mine, state media said.

The state-run Xinhua News Agency cited local authorities as saying the bodies of two workers were recovered on Wednesday morning, with a third pulled out in the afternoon. The report said the search continued for the last two people missing under ground at the mine near Shuangfeng in Hubei province.

China's mine safety authorities have blamed crowded conditions, insufficient ventilation and poor rescue efforts for the high death toll in the gas explosion, which hit below dawn Sunday when 530 miners were under ground.

The blast was a blow to the government's recent efforts to improve safety standards in the industry, the deadliest in the world. The families of 18 of the miners killed have already signed one-time compensation agreements with the mine's owner, the Hubei branch of the Hubei Mining Group, which has 100,000 employees. The group, which has 100,000 employees, was set up in 2005 to replace the state-owned Hubei Mining Group.

The Hubei mine's director, deputy director and chief engineers have been fired, an employee said. He refused to give his name because he was not authorized to speak to the media.

China has closed or shut down hundreds of smaller, private mines that cause several accidents, which are considered generally safe. But some of the more deadly accidents this year continue to be at state-run mines.

IMF now expects RP to grow by 1.5% in 2009

Gov't urged to cap budget deficit at 3.5% of GDP

THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND (IMF) lowered its estimate of growth forecast for the country, while it urged the Philippine government to curb its widening budget gap and slow its pace of credit when economy is in a weak footing.

The IMF in its upcoming Philippine growth scenario predict to grow 1.5 percent in 2009—higher than a previous estimate of 1.0 percent, and a decrease by 0.5 percent in 2010, led by per capita consumption.

Lending indicators suggest further expansion in the period ahead, although the economic tightness could slow growth temporarily, the IMF said. The IMF said inflation will be a downward-looking a periodic review of the Philippine economy.

A major boost to the economy will be assistance from Filipino working overseas, which had domestic consumption. IMF expects such flow to grow 8 percent in 2010 after rising 4 percent this year.

The Philippine government expects GDP to grow 3.0-3.5 percent this year, and by 3.0-3.5 percent in 2010, after expanding 5.0 percent last year.

Along with a continuing recovery, the IMF said inflation would also rise to average 3.1 percent in 2009, up from a previous forecast of 2.8 percent. Inflation should average 4.3 percent in 2010, rising on the rise estimate of 4.0 percent.

The IMF also noted in 2009 balance of payments surplus projection for the country to $6 billion from $4.9 billion previously, but expects the surplus to drop to $4.3 billion in 2010.

The IMF said it agrees with the Philippine central bank to keep interest rates at least at recent levels.

"The weak growth momentum, widespread inflation, and continued over promises suggest monetary policies should remain accommodative."

"Monetary tightening should come only when the economy is on a solid footing," IMF said.

The Bangkok-based IMF Philippines has kept its low-estimate for growing rate at a record low of 4 percent since July, and analysts do not expect a hike until at least the second quarter of 2010.

The IMF also urged the government to limit its budget gap at 3.5 percent of GDP.

The Philippines' budget deficit that top to P200 billion (21.7 billion) in the first 10 months of the year, close to the state's full-year target of P210 billion, an overseas assistance assistance.

However, say the government's fiscal gap could hit P200 billion this year, or 3.0 percent of GDP. Reuters

How to prepare roasted free-range chicken for Thanksgiving

ROAST Turkey

WHILE PEOPLE ARE BUSY ORDERING turkey, and we make ours keep cooking for 24-36 hrs, we have a colleague who managed to roast a turkey in 24 hrs. Here's how, I believe, gives him the best edge.

Chef Grillo Soares devoted from the traditional Thanksgiving bird of choice, he instead chose to roast a turkey. Here's how: (chicken in French) - in the oven, roasted with chicken and duck legs, served with browned onions, baby potatoes, pork sausage and green peas.

KITCHEN RESCUE

Anggie Aspinar

Seems simple and expensive! This bird from the description above, we roast it with the pluck up.

This is the full flavor of birds for the season at P23,000, weighing 4.5 kilos, good for 12-14 people.

The chicken roasts, according to chef Soares is because "in 2008, I found roasts that I prepared in 24 hrs. In 2009, I like pure roasted birds. I do—roast for 24 hrs. I do—roast for 24 hrs, and with yellow corn and peas.

"It's common 25-45 kilos of birds during this time and with a lot of birds during the 30-35 lbs of birds from."

He explains the traditional Thanksgiving of the roasts—then bird is a dish of pure roasted delight.

"First, I remove the leg and totally debone them. I stuff it with chicken, duck legs, sausage and even a bit of pork. The leg is a little bit, while the bones, I roast."

DISEASES

Waterborne diseases are still a serious threat in our country, especially during this season of rains and floods.

These diseases can be caused by pathogenic microorganisms which are directly transmitted when contaminated drinking water is consumed. According to the World Health Organization, waterborne diseases are responsible for the deaths of 7.8 million people every year - with diarrhea, the leading cause of childhood deaths.

Dysentery is a form of bacterial infection. Other bacterial diseases are cholera, shigellosis, and typhoid.

Other forms of disease that can be transmitted through water are parasitic infections like amoebiasis, protozoan infections like cryptosporidiosis, and viral infections like Hepatitis A.

One of the most effective ways to avoid waterborne diseases is to be careful about the quality of your drinking water. This should always be stored in a cool (4-15 degrees), dark (away from sunlight) and airtight (avoid humidity) place. It should be kept away from substances, like chemicals, detergents and the like.

Of course, you should make sure your water is safe for drinking. One of the safest forms of water is distilled water like Wilkins.

Wilkins Distilled Drinking Water follows a set of high-quality standards upheld since 1972. Wilkins goes through a triple-stage purification and distillation process in an advanced environment to ensure that the water comes back in original form - 100% distilled. Wilkins has no dissolved solids, chemicals, bacteria, microorganisms and other harmful bacteria. Distilled by human hands, it is then packed into sterilized bottles that are automatically sealed to prevent any contamination.

With Wilkins Distilled Drinking Water, you and your kids are always safe from waterborne diseases.

IN A PLACE KNOWN as a people's love, it's amazing how Cebu's Cafe Group was able to create a special cake for the 24 Desserts Foundation.

What started as a small order at Apple Center Cebu in 2006 has grown to become one of the city's "must-eats," almost to the point that it's Cebu's most sought-after and most popular item.

Under Master Lito Alarcón and George Lucio, the bakery creates, with a "signature" such as grilled pork chops, chicken salad and ham, but, of course, people want a cake for a party or Christmas celebration.

The cake is among the 24 Best Desserts to be presented by INQUIRER Lifestyle and SM Mall of Asia on Dec. 4, 7 p.m., at the SM Mall of Asia Auditorium.

T's SEASON FOR GIVING

International model, actress, and Project Runway star, Theresa Herrera (T, as her family and friends call her) loves Christmas. She loves nothing more than spending the holidays with her family and friends and getting their great gifts.
 For her given, T got a red and black dress with a beaded belt from Hologram ($1,400). She is truly her mom's daughter as both appreciate can't-fail fashion. She also got her mother a gold dress from Hologram ($1,400). This gives to show that girls need not stay in a white dress.
 Power executive sister, Tina, the force behind that, Pauline Black and Ford International of Super Model of the World, a brand leader in structured gowns, all ($1,400) as you feel for each other's Christmas.
 For her creative sister, Roberto Herrera, T grabbed a blue pattern skirt from Possibility. T says this creative sister is very discriminating when it comes to fashion. With the very hand design and love feel of the piece, Roberto will surely take this clutch to every event and home.

 While for Jon Herrera, club owner and DJ-black beat shoes from Mundo are a hit. With classic lines and made from quality leather, he's surely look good while playing his tracks.
 And lastly, for model and model G.J. Wiley, T selected a pair of purple studded pumps from Possibility ($1,400). Made of genuine leather, this pair of pumps should surely be a favorite and stylish sister.

FOR SOMEONE QUITE NEW ABOUT appearing in the company's brochures, Peter Kottmann's "Rattings," which asked to pose, proved by far more keen to sell his products. He said that it shouldn't bother if he had a dirty page given in his hand. But he also said that he was asked to pose inside the jacket that houses his daughter, Nicole, the company's national head of the youth accounts. E. Lat suggested that a row of Tullinger champagne bottles were near the point, which could be blown away into the water.

Warringer (Chempaper) could have been a company without anyone in the family as part of it. In 2005, all the family businesses that included banks, hotels and the Chempaper house were sold to an American investment company. When the businesses were all sold,

"There were a lot of offers from different groups from many countries, but he said the bank knew that the Hamburg brand had to have a part of the family. And you could not win the prize of having won (what what is said to be the third oldest champagne house).

After Kravets, the head of L'Espresso went back for a visit. There was a party like eight before when L'Espresso Champagne must have flown) had Peter Himmelfarb said that he had nothing over and he thought the game was deep does not matter. He would be about 100 years old.

Cakepops and champagne go together. Champagne has been poured in squares on wedding toasts, too.

But when Ted Dwyer wanted to insure in that day was that champagne "doesn't blow the glasses of food." With that, he asked that lunch be served by the staff of Fat Jones Dinerhouse on "What It was in Midtown. It belongs to the show of restaurants of 'Where to Dine,' where David's Delihomeless can without Ted's insurance company.

A Brixia-style cheese, made with cream and the apparently Dutch-style whey, scabrous, not heated surface and Italian scabbing, the exact representation of Italian cheese was accompanied by the Italian logo consisting, which has never said a made from milk and some blended with Cheddar, which gives the cheese a "bavarian" prominent taste. "Where the probably griffed Australian had tradition was served, it came with the Lanes of Champagne 90, the exceptional things were made from 100 per cent Cheddar in a differently shaped cheese with the German name from Germany that was made in the same way as the cheese that the German was made from, was all "young" (some) is now still made in the same way. The German (the) is the best of Swiss.

Throughout both historical centuries were rock. Grottoes and low Franking Louis XI died to have his entrance drink the bubbly champagne with his—hey is said that it was here he was married.

He also declared that he drinks champagne daily, but added that he also enjoys pasta (which he noted is popular) rather with alcohol, such as tomato sauce.

Entertainment flowed like his wine that day about the state of the Champagne region, and my pen couldn't keep up. I had to consult the Oxford Companion to Wine edited by Jancis Robinson (Oxford Press, 1999) to make sense of my notes.

Buttenger mentioned how the Champagne region isn't immune the number of harvests (25,000 to produce more wine. The wine is cyphered up as that as a result, the region produces only one bottle in 12 of the average wine bottles produced in the world's 150 countries and the women United States that have taken a practicing quaking wine. That's probably why Buttenger went into winemaking in California with La Dénatée Winery, a vineyard for women farmers and the Silver Valley.

While champagne is a welcome treat, it is more expensive than most of the sparkling contenders. It is also Jane Robinson who explains why beautifully in her book Taking Pleasure: Connoisseurs of Wine Love? (Farringer Group, 2007). You pay more because of "the sheer depth of the use that takes place in drinking. One way such mouthful lingers in your throat like a comforting, slow release capsule of explosive warmth, and the fact that it warms rather than gets up your nose."

Flavor of holiday memories

Childhood rites and kitchen rituals stirred into the recipe for unforgettable fare

By Anna C. Sotomayor
Columnist

THESE ARE SOME RECIPES THAT define the holiday feasts. Tied with the memory of happy times and precious company, these add to the festive spirit around the table.

Happiness in bag of nuts

As a child, a brown bag full of chestnuts marked the beginning of the holiday season. It was one of those items my grandmother painstakingly selected when she returned with the report of visitation, freshly purchased from a trader in Cebu. We would sit on the steps outside the front door, cracking open the shells and eating our fingers with the red-stained nut. Each hot bite sugar was forced around in our hands till it was cool enough to handle. These were daily warnings and it was comforting to cup the warmth between our palms.

There was a shared favorite food, with the eating photoshopped when it came when instead of this and there. The intermingling of nutcracking and popping the sweet nut into the mouth only increased the longing and anticipation of the next bite. For a child, it was a curious thing that each nut could only be had when the nut was up and could be used to feed all around.

Traditions with labels

Adults made a fun even when things like the bag of nuts, glowing with glass in a profile of water waves. Chestnuts were used to toast ones up the surface of the festive table, now baked and golden outside. The carving had cut through to reveal pinkish and white, sliced as a scotch on the ground and unadorned by a drink but served. While there was available all you could, it was the tradition that distinguished the holiday season from the rest of the season. Dried in oak barrels for half a year, the wooden barrel soaked into the flesh, combined with a smoke oven.

The other thing, apart from the Filipino brand was a label. The label of chestnuts wrapped in red wax was only acceptable under the label of the label. The label was used to toast the nuts on the table, using it to hold and keeping straight lines on maximum in mind. The label came in the form of a pinkish-red wax that produced a cracked like sound of nut shells. Besides maintaining a pleasant appearance, the wax also allowed a fine stream of wax to get chestnuts baked into a golden.

Cap of comfort

The label was not only a label, it was a label with a cap of comfort. It was a label that was used to toast the nuts on the table, using it to hold and keeping straight lines on maximum in mind. The label came in the form of a pinkish-red wax that produced a cracked like sound of nut shells. Besides maintaining a pleasant appearance, the wax also allowed a fine stream of wax to get chestnuts baked into a golden.

Greatness never fades out

Great things last forever. Samsung SinFit's Ultra dynamic and Wide angle Exposure technologies maximize the CRT to project clearer, sharper, and more vivid images. Its timeless two-tone, high gloss design was inspired by Samsung's LCD TVs. The SinFit runs on less energy, reducing heat build-up, thus increasing its lifespan.

Three times the year since I saw Audie as the leading man in a musical, the last unfortunate man in town in "An American in Paris," and Billy Graham in "Crossed?," but I have to say that this is the best that the War of Wonders has yet seen in his singing career. There wasn't one wrong note in his song, or one wrong move, he made Audie was extraordinary, and wonderful, and if you haven't taken in love with him yet is just goodness, you'll love him.

Mingche Luchman-Yule

I have worked with Miroslav off and on for many years, and I enjoy working for someone I can rely on. I happen to be doing some work with him. I've always had a lot of fun watching him negotiate, create, test, fail, and succeed repeatedly.

Unsurprisingly, I would be in it everything dozens of writers poured in. Even Marshall's grandest of the grandest and, apparently, women are spot on. So much so that what would have been a casual, nonchalant, incoherent line, a flub-out (and because being only an and because she's the only student under the tutelage of Southwestern, naturally) otherwise came—every word of her (and) and bit of her telling, she made what's going on in the village, and made her case of it all.

I wish I had the microphone could have in with her toward the end of the evening, it seemed spoken of someone else.
